Luchian's paintings are not merely beautiful; they are also deeply personal. He often painted the same scenes over and over again, each time finding new ways to express his love for his country. His paintings are a testament to the beauty of Romania and the strength of the Romanian people.

The Paintings

The 86 paintings in this collection are divided into four sections: "Transylvania," "Bucovina," "The Black Sea," and "The Carpathian Mountains.". Each section features a selection of paintings that capture the unique beauty of that region.

The paintings in the "Transylvania" section are characterized by their lush green hills and rolling meadows. Luchian loved to paint the traditional villages and churches of Transylvania, and his paintings capture the region's rich history and culture.

The paintings in the "Bucovina" section are dominated by the region's dense forests and towering mountains. Luchian was particularly drawn to the painted monasteries of Bucovina, and his paintings capture the vibrant colors and intricate designs of these architectural masterpieces.

The paintings in the "The Black Sea" section feature the sparkling waters of the Black Sea and the sandy beaches that line its coast. Luchian loved to paint the fishermen and boats of the Black Sea, and his paintings capture the region's vibrant maritime culture.

The paintings in the "The Carpathian Mountains" section depict the snow-capped peaks and rugged valleys of the Carpathian Mountains. Luchian was fascinated by the mountains, and his paintings capture their grandeur and beauty.
