Stacey Abrams is a pioneering politician and advocate for voting rights. She made history as the first Black woman to be nominated for governor of a major political party in the United States. In this National Geographic Reader, young readers will learn about Abrams's childhood, her education, and her early career as a lawyer and businesswoman.

They will also learn about Abrams's work to fight voter suppression and expand access to voting for all Americans. Abrams's story is one of determination, resilience, and service. She is a role model for young people who want to make a difference in the world.

This engaging and informative book is perfect for young readers who are interested in politics, history, and social justice.
