The 5 Main Types of Patients

Understanding the types of patients can help you determine the best ways to meet your patient education needs. For more information visit us at www.eastridgehealth.com

#1 Passive-dependent Patients who are trusting individuals. They depend on the professional figure with this role. Doctors and Nurses - to make the most decisions for their health and life.	#2 Open-minded exploring Patients who seek a personal connection with their doctors. They are usually open to exploring new options for their medical condition, including diagnosis, medicine and treatment. Also, encourage doctors to interact with them.	#3 Independent-skeptical Patients who always question doctors. They don't accept any recommendation. They tend to be armed up with their personal views and rational statements that are common with their knowledge.	#4 Intellectual-researcher Patients who always perform their literature searches. They are very specific, extensive in every area of information. They "play the doctor" coming up with clinical queries and offer suggestions who will improve healthcare delivery.	#5 Expedient-flexible Patients who tend to choose doctors based on availability. They don't care much about checking every data or sample. They are usually not concerned about what their doctors would do for them.
